About No Strings Theatre

In collaboration with industry professionals, No Strings Theatre aims to develop, empower, and inspire the next generation of performing artists. Assuring an equitable space, we are committed to fostering anti-racist, non-biased theatrical practices while reducing socio-economic barriers. Our practices facilitate an inclusive space for community engagement in the arts.

About 'Opera By Request'

'Opera by Request' was founded 10 years ago by director William Shookhoff after noticing a small void in the performance availability for singers embarking on their "grown-up" careers as soloists. Shookhoff understood firsthand what young professional singers were lacking and realized that true knowledge of a role can only come from performing an entire opera with a full cast on stage. From the beginning, Shookhoff has invited singers to propose and co-produce operas, with the intention to build the singer's repertoire and performance experience.

Thus, OBR was established with the mandate of providing emerging artists with meaningful performance experience to help develop their careers while building appropriate repertoire.

About No Strings Theatre

In collaboration with industry professionals, No Strings Theatre aims to develop, empower, and inspire the next generation of performing artists. Assuring an equitable space, we are committed to fostering anti-racist, non-biased theatrical practices while reducing socio-economic barriers. Our practices facilitate an inclusive space for community engagement in the arts.

About 'Opera By Request'

'Opera by Request' was founded 10 years ago by director William Shookhoff after noticing a small void in the performance availability for singers embarking on their "grown-up" careers as soloists. Shookhoff understood firsthand what young professional singers were lacking and realized that true knowledge of a role can only come from performing an entire opera with a full cast on stage. From the beginning, Shookhoff has invited singers to propose and co-produce operas, with the intention to build the singer's repertoire and performance experience.

Thus, OBR was established with the mandate of providing emerging artists with meaningful performance experience to help develop their careers while building appropriate repertoire.
